

Massinissa Allam

Web Developer

I am an enthusiastic, determined, and technology-passionate individual. I have worked in various fields for many years but decided to embark on a new career path. I have always had a passion for programming and computer science, and after extensive research, I chose to attend the Mohole School (web development).

My decision to change careers was motivated by a desire to work in an environment that I am passionate about and to use my technical skills in a more creative and innovative way. I know that technology is rapidly evolving, and I want to be a part of this change.
